

California Casino News

April 29-May 5, 2019

Happy soon-to-be Mother's Day to all moms and soon-to-be moms. We hope that you all have a wonderful day celebrating.

In this week's news, we have the Tejon Tribe out in Kern county receive some movement of progress on a long-awaited casino on a 306-acre site near Mettler, California. In Southern California, Jamul Casino will continue to be a gaming focused property despite other large California Indian resorts that now offer hotel rooms, spas, pools, golf and other non-gaming amenities. Lastly, Harrah's Northern California has now opened their doors in western Amador County. The 71,000 square foot venue offers 950 slots and video poker machines, 20 gaming tables, hotel and a variety of dining options.

Tejon Tribe finally sees action on long-awaited gaming development

Click here to view article

It's taken awhile but the Tejon Tribe is finally seeing some movement on a long-awaited casino in California. The Bureau of Indian Affairs released a scoping report for the tribe's project in February, The Delano Record reported. It's the first sign of progress since a notice of intent to prepare an environmental impact statement was published way back in August 2015

'Gaming-focused' Jamul Casino allows Southern California tribe to control its destiny

Nobody will mistake the Jamul Casino for Sycuan, Barona, Viejas or any of the other of the large Southern California Indian resorts that offer hotel rooms, spas, pools, golf and other non-gaming amenities. That's quite okay with the Jamul Indian Village.

Click here to view article

Harrah's Northern California opening today in western Amador County

Click here to view article

California will reportedly welcome its latest tribal casino later today when the federally-recognized Buena Vista Rancheria of Me-Wuk Indians opens its Harrah's Northern California venue in partnership with Caesars Entertainment Corporation.