The Las Vegas company behind bringing a new Native American casino to Madera County is close to breaking ground, according to a high-ranking official close to the project.

The California State Supreme Court cleared the way in September for Las Vegas-based Red Rock Resorts to build North Fork Rancheria's casino off of Highway 99 near Avenue 18 just north of Madera, less than 40 miles east of the Chukchansi Gold Resort & Casino and Table Mountain Casino.

What Does a Night Out at a Casino in San Francisco Look Like?

Regardless if you are with a loved one, with friends, or wanting to have fun on your own, a night out at a casino in San Francisco can be quite memorable. Not only do they offer different types of games and stakes, but experiences can vary from traditional to completely modern, covering everyone's taste. While there is only one full-flagged casino in San Francisco proper, there are at least three big reasons why anyone even visiting the area:

1. Phenomenal service
2. A high variety of games
3. Good odds, bonuses, and payouts
