

California Casino News

January 14-January 27, 2018

In Southern California, San Diego cardroom employees voice their opposition to regulations proposed by the state's Bureau of Gambling Control they claim will harm their businesses and will cause activity job opportunity in the state's cardrooms to plummet. An update on the suit against California and its governor over alleged violation of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act. In Northern California, A federal judge denied a suit aimed at stopping development of Wilton Rancheria's planned $500 million casino resort in Elk Grove.

San Diego cardroom employees fight gambling control

A group of cardroom employees voiced their opposition today to regulations proposed by the state's Bureau of Gambling Control they claim will harm their businesses. The bureau is considering placing regulations on blackjack-style and other so-called player-dealer games that supporters say violate state law. Cardroom employees say the regulations will cause activity and job numbers in the state's cardrooms to plummet.

Click here to view article

California Native American tribes file suit against state over gaming compact

Click here to view article

Three federally recognized Native American tribes have filed a suit against California and its governor over a gaming compact. Chicken Ranch Rancheria of Me-Wuk Indians, Blue Lake Rancheria and Chemehuevi Indian Tribe filed a complaint on Jan. 4 in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of California against Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and the state of California over alleged violation of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act.

Court throws out another challenge to Elk Grove casino

A federal judge has denied a suit aimed at stopping development of Wilton Rancheria's planned $500 million casino resort in Elk Grove. Activist group Stand Up for California! filed suit against the U.S. Interior Department and the Wilton tribe two years ago, seeking a temporary restraining order against the development of the casino and to compel the tribe and Interior Department to disclose documents.

Click here to view article